NEW WESTERN-PRODUCED TELEVISION SHOW

St. Joseph, Mo. —Oct. 12, 2006—“Western Reports” is on the air. This month, Missouri Western State University’s new magazine-style television program debuted, hosted by sophomore Megan Glenn.

The 30-minute program, produced at the beginning of each month, can be seen at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays, and at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturdays. It is on St. Joseph Cablevision channel 39 and Charter Communications of Atchison, Kan., channel 97.

“We want to people to become better informed about what is happening at Western, and what Western has to offer,” said Danielle Hunt, television services manager and coordinator of the new program. She said the program running throughout October features interviews with Dr. James Scanlon, Western’s president; and Dr. Kelly Henry, director of applied learning. Next month’s program will feature student organizations.

“I’m excited about it. I enjoy finding out about campus activities, and I enjoyed interviewing Dr. Scanlon,” Glenn, a business management major from St. Joseph, said. She believes that interviewing administrators, faculty and fellow students has helped build her confidence, and is giving her great experience for her career.

Hunt noted that more programming has also been added to the daily lineup from Annenberg/PBS 9 a.m. – 12 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and 1 – 4 p.m. Sundays. Series currently being shown include “Art of the Western World,” “A Biography of America” and “Economics U$A.” Future series will include features on languages, science, history and literature.

She said the Instructional Media Center welcomes feedback and story ideas from viewers. Hunt can be contacted at 816-271-4298.
