Course Syllabus for ENG 10815 College Writing and Research

Departmental Course Description

ENG 108 students will complete three formal research based projects in addition to other graded and ungraded work. In these assignments, students will learn how to analyze, synthesize, and evaluate the thinking of others in order to discover, develop, and test their own points of view. Final drafts of all formal writing assignments must be word processed. All students are expected to be prepared for class and participate in class discussions related to reading and writing assignments. In addition, students will keep complete portfolios of all their writings. (See attached handout and Web listing at www.missouriwestern.edu/eflj/lg/eng108.html#Course for list of objectives and institutional competencies for this General Studies course.)

Required Text:

Lunsford, Andrea A., John J. Rusckiewicz, Keith Walters. everything's an argument: with readings. 2nd ed. Boston: Bedford, 2001.

Recommended Text:

Hult, Christine A. and Huckin, Thomas N. The New Century Handbook. Boston: Allyn and Bacon, 2002.

Class listserv: You will be joined to eng10810@list.mwsc.edu

Course Grade:

Points will be awarded for all projects. At the end of the term, I will divide your points by the number of possible points and award grades on the basis of the following percentages:

90-99% Course Grade A

80-89% Course Grade B

70-79% Course Grade C

60-69% Course Grade D

Below 60% Course Grade F

I anticipate the following number of possible points for the term:

Up to 100 possible points for in-class discussions and out-of-class journaling/reflection, usually regarding our texts and/or other assigned readings, which will be allocated in 5 - 10 points per activity. No make-ups or late work will be accepted for these activities.

150 possible points for Research Project # 1. (an evaluation)

250 possible points for Research Project # 2. (a proposal)

250 possible points for Research Project #3. (an annotated bibliography for a causal argument)

250 possible points for the Final Exam. (a causal argument using sources from the annotated bibliography - written in class during the final exam period.)

Attendance Policy:

Come to class. There are no makeup points for missing work completed in class.

Due Dates:

Papers and projects are due at the beginning of the hour on the assigned date. Late submissions will be lowered points equivalent to one letter grade per day late.

Students with Disabilities:

Any student in this course who has a disability that prevents or hinders the completion of class requirements must notify me immediately so that provisions may be made for any assistance which is needed.

Honesty Policy:

It is expected that all students will submit their own work and will document (MLA format) all sources and materials they research. Plagiarism or cheating on papers or quizzes is not acceptable. The first instance of plagiarism will result in a grade of 'F.' The second instance will result in an 'F' for the course.
